

DUEL OF WOMEN'S WITS MAKES PROBE PIQUANT AS EX-WIFE OF JESS SMITH CONCLUDES STORY

River and Lakes Will Be Dragged for Woman

HELP OF POLICE ASKED IN SEARCH FOR MRS. PINNELL

Woman Last Seen on Friday When She Went to Store Near Her Home To Give Order.

THEORY OF FOUL PLAY ADVANCED BY FAMILY

Police Are of Opinion, However, That Mrs. Pinnell May Have Ended Her Life by Drowning.

Lakes and rivers in the vicinity of Atlanta will be dragged today in search of the body of Mrs. Maggie Pinnell, 48 years old, of 65 Clifton street, whose disappearance from her home last Friday has alarmed members of her family.

While police officers are inclined to believe that the woman has committed suicide as the result of domestic differences, the family Sunday night advanced the theory of foul play.

Police Make Search. At the request of her family Sunday special officers combed the city in a fruitless effort to locate her. She is last seen on Friday in a store near her home where she ordered groceries delivered at her residence. She then disappeared.

Reports made to the police in connection with her disappearance and posed suicide were to the effect that her husband gave her money with which to pay bills and that she spent for medicine. When her husband turned of the disposition of the cash, argument ensued, police were told. Mrs. Pinnell then left the house and has not been heard from since.

Fear Foul Play. Sons of Mrs. Pinnell, who visited the station Sunday night to inquire about the search for their mother, told the police that they were of the opinion her disappearance was a result of foul play. They denied that there had been any trouble between Mr. and Mrs. Pinnell and stated that so far as they knew there was no reason why she should have left her home.

A. M. Dodd, a member of the police force, states that he believes Mrs. Pinnell drowned herself in a lake near her home. E. J. Tate, of the detective department who is looking into the case, also pressed the opinion that family troubles had caused her to commit suicide.

The missing woman is described as 48 years old, five feet, ten inches in height, and weighing 175 pounds.

NAPOLEONIC LAW INVOKED TO SAVE PRIDE OF PARIS

Paris, March 23.—A law handed down from the time of Napoleon is being invoked to save Paris from Broadway advertising methods. The large electric signs, steadily increasing in number around the Place de l'Opera, have hurt the eyes of the French people accustomed to softer light and offended their artistic taste. A measure was brought to prevent further desecration of the artistic opera house.

So the prefect of police dug up an ancient statute that gives him jurisdiction over the exterior design of buildings in the vicinity of interesting sculpture or spots which under French law may be classified as historical monuments.

Poison, Shotgun Chosen by Macon Men in Suicides

One Pulls Gun Trigger With Toe—Other Dies in Wife's Presence.

Macon, Ga., March 23.—Early T. Sanders, 29, mechanic, drank the contents of a four-ounce bottle of liquid poison in the presence of his wife and baby here this morning. He died in a hospital a few minutes later.

A few hours afterwards, A. F. Shelly, 31, city employee, held a shotgun to his head and pulled the trigger with his toe, killing himself instantly.

Sanders was out of work. He entered the room where his wife was bathing their baby and exclaimed, "It's all over." He fell across the bed, the empty bottle slipping to the floor. As Mrs. Sanders glanced toward him, her eyes became focused on a "poison" label on the bottle. She summoned aid, but it was too late.

Shelly had been drinking, the police ascertained, and when his family left him alone in the house this afternoon, he obtained the gun and killed himself. No motive was assigned for this act.

TWO MORE PROBES MAY BE ORDERED BY HOUSE TODAY

Resolutions Ordering Inquiry Into Aircraft Industry and Bond Duplication Come Up for Vote.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Washington, March 23.—With five investigations in full blast and two or three in a state of temporary quiescence, congress tomorrow is expected to decide whether two more shall be added to the list—investigation of the aircraft industry and of the bureau of engraving and printing.

The Daugherty, the Teapot Dome, the shipping board, and the revenue bureau investigations will take up where they left off last week, and the investigation of alleged land frauds in the Rio Grande valley of Texas, asked by Senator Hefflin, democrat, Alabama, will begin.

Investigation of charges against two members of congress as developed by a Chicago grand jury has been authorized but is held up waiting action of a Washington grand jury which is hearing evidence in the case.

Diploma Mill Probe Waits. The diploma mill investigation, headed by Senator Copeland, democrat, of New York, is for the time being inactive, as is the senate's propaganda investigation. Senator Moses, republican, of New Hampshire, is chairman of the propaganda committee, a member of the Daugherty committee, and also chairman of the committee which will investigate Senator Hefflin's charges.

While all of these committees already have authority to investigate, the house must vote on resolutions by Representative Nelson, republican, of Wisconsin, to investigate the aircraft industry and by Representative King, republican, of Illinois, to investigate charges of bond duplication in the bureau of engraving and printing. Meanwhile certain senators contemplate demanding an investigation of the Red River Oil legislation passed in the closing days of the last congress.

'OWN YOUR HOME' DOORS TO SWING OPEN TO PUBLIC

Atlanta's Third Annual Exposition To Start at 7 O'Clock—Many Big Exhibits Are Offered.

THOUSANDS EXPECTED TO VISIT AUDITORIUM

Scenery and Decoration Alone Worth Going Miles To See, Says Director S. W. Bacon, Jr.

With the big interior of the auditorium transformed into a miniature fairland city of artistic houses, large and small, and novel exhibits of almost every imaginable shape and size, final preparations are being rushed for the opening tonight of Atlanta's third and largest Own Your Home exposition. The doors will swing open promptly at 7 o'clock to admit the thousands who are expected to be in attendance, and the orchestra's prelude will be the nearest thing in the way of formality that will mark the occasion.

The scene that will greet the eyes of visitors would be hard to describe without the use of varicolored ink. While some idea of the beauty, variety and magnitude of the many exhibits can be had from preceding descriptions, the decorations, draperies and lighting effects must be seen to be appreciated.

Beautiful Decorations. The overhead in the main auditorium has been beautifully draped in white and gold, with splashes of brighter colors here and there, but the overhead drapery only serves as the finishing touch for the beautiful landscape painting which forms a background extending around the entire interior of the main auditorium. On the same principle as the famous cyclorama at Grant park, although many times larger, this landscape painting, with its green trees and shrubbery, its rolling golden hills and its fleecy clouds and multi-colored

$100,000 DAMAGE CAUSED BY FIRE

Top Floor of Home Art Supply Company Destroyed and Lower Floors Suffer Loss.

Approximately $100,000 loss was caused about 4 o'clock Sunday morning by a fire which completely destroyed the top floor of the Home Art Supply company, 172 Whitehall street, and seriously damaged the three lower floors. An ice cream company, located next door, suffered slight loss by smoke and water.

The blaze started between the ceiling of the fourth floor and the roof. The origin has not been learned. Five companies were summoned for the scene at 4 o'clock. More than two hours were consumed in extinguishing the flames.

W. S. Kincaid, president of the company, stated that although the exact damage could not be determined Sunday night he believed it would amount to approximately $75,000 or $100,000. The firm carried $65,000 insurance.

The Home Art Supply company's stock consists of household furnishings and clothing.

U. S. Political Cavaliers Lack Elan—Coolidge Needs Beard

MISTINGUET THINKS McADOO IS HANDSOMEST

BY HARLAN C. MILLER. Chicago, March 23.—So far as personal beauty is concerned any fairly handsome dark horse is apt to throw the present aspirants for the American presidency completely out of the running some spring morning.

This is the frank but unflattering conclusion of Mlle. Mistinguet, French actress of the peerless legs, worth $1,000,000, more or less, but insured for that amount nevertheless, after a critical inspection of the physiognomies of the candidates.

"Of course, an oily complexion simply cannot be tolerated in a presidential possibility this season," decreed Mistinguet, in her delightful Gaiety brogue, here translated for the benefit of Constitution readers.

They Lack Dash.

"Your candidates are not dashing!" That's what troubles Mistinguet most, she declared Sunday. America's political contenders, she finds, are dignified, grave, solemn, pre-occupied

$1,500,000 STORE WILL OPEN TODAY

Leading Manufacturers Here for Rich's Opening. Pretty Models To Offer Fashion Review.

The $1,500,000 new department store of M. Rich & Bros. company, Atlanta's masterpiece in department store construction and design, will be opened formally to the public at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Thousands of visitors are expected to attend the general reception and house-warming planned by the management. On this first day no sales will be made, the day having been dedicated to an official welcome to the public.

The formal opening will be sponsored by a committee of 22 of Atlanta's leading citizens, headed by Forrest Adair, and will be attended by a large group of America's leading apparel and furnishings manufacturers who arrived from New York Sunday in a special Pullman for the event.

Governor to Speak.

Participating in the opening program will be a number of distinguished citizens, the principal speakers being Governor Clifford Walker, Mayor Walter Sims, former Governor John M. Slaton, Robert F. Maddox, chairman of the board of the Atlanta and Lowry National bank; Preston Arkwright, of the Georgia Railway and Power company; Clark Howell, editor of The Atlanta Constitution; John S. Cohen, editor of The Journal; James B. Nevin, editor of The Georgian; Julian Boehm, president of the Inter-Civic council; Former Senator Rebecca Latimer Felton and Dr. Joseph Jacobs, of the Jacobs Pharmacy company.

Throughout the day a dozen manikins from New York city will exhibit latest creations in gowns and ready-to-wear from the world's leading markets. The group of models came to Atlanta especially for the occasion and reached Brookwood station Sunday.

Atlantans Already Begging To See "Homes Beautiful"

Next Six Days Will Be Used by Decorators in Putting Final Touches on Three Houses.

The Home Beautiful exhibit which will open March 30, will demonstrate in house No. 3 how the same beauty, charm and artistic effect can be attained in a home which represents a comparatively small outlay of money that is to be found in a home where the cost of furnishings does not have to be considered so much.

This house is one of a number which have been built by W. D. Beatie, in the delightful south side subdivision of Capitol View, and was loaned by Mr. Beatie as part of his contribution to the Home Beautiful movement. It is located at 252 Sylvan road, and is only about 150 feet from the end of the Stewart avenue car line. It is a pretty, white one-story house, with living room, dining room, butler's pantry, two bedrooms, bath and kitchen. It also has a side porch opening from the living room and dining room, porch back of the

OIL COMMITTEE PLANS TO CERTIFY SINCLAIR TO JURY

United States District Attorney To Be Instructed To Press Contempt Case for Senate.

NEW YORK SCRIBE CALLED TO TESTIFY

Al Jennings, Outlaw Turned Evangelist, Slated as Witness To Be Heard This Week.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Washington, March 23.—The senate oil committee decided today to recommend that the senate certify Harry F. Sinclair to the district attorney of the District of Columbia for grand jury proceedings because he refused to answer further questions put by the committee investigators.

Some of the members of the committee anticipated an effort would be made in the senate to have the lessee of Teapot Dome haled before the bar of the senate or contempt charges, but they said that in this case the controversy undoubtedly would result in court proceedings which would work out to the same purpose as the committee's recommendation.

Want Him Confined.

The decision to recommend that the case be given to the local authorities came after the committee had deliberated over two possible courses—that adopted and an alternate plan to commit him to the custody of the sergeant-at-arms of the senate until he was ready to answer questions. It was decided that if the latter plan were followed the oil operator undoubtedly would gain his liberty on a writ of error.

Harold Vivian, a reporter on the New York Times, will be called by the committee tomorrow. He will be questioned about a story he wrote for the Times stating it was understood Will H. Hays, former reub-

VETERAN CONVICT GUARD IS DYING

Charles C. Davis Is Victim of Unexpected and Unprovoked Attack by Half-Crazed Negro.

Near death at Grady hospital as the result of a fractured skull and gashes about the head, Charles C. Davis, 58, for 37 years a guard at Southern convict camp, told police that he had been attacked Sunday afternoon by an unidentified negro while he stood at the corner of Chesnut and Baker streets.

The negro, who fled on the approach of a car, is said to have struck the guard without provocation while half-crazed as the result of the effects of whisky.

Davis said that the negro on approaching him, picked up a brick from the street and knocked him to the ground before he could offer any resistance.

He gave a good description of the negro and detectives predict an early arrest.

The only theory for the attack of officers can advance is that the negro may have served in a prison camp at some time, and may have had a grudge against the guard.

BERGDOLL SOUGHT IN HOLD OF LINER BY HARBOR COPS

New York, March 23.—Federal officers and police searched the Hamburg-American liner Albert Ballin for Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, draft evader, when the steamship arrived from Germany today. The search was made on the strength of reports that Bergdoll had left Germany.

Versailles Pact Must Be Obeyed Is Marx Warning

Chancellor Advises Nation That Germany Must Shoulder Her Burden.

Berlin, March 23.—Chancellor Marx, chief of the centrist party, addressing a political meeting at Ebertfeld today, uttered a warning against any opposition to the provisions of the treaty of Versailles. The Germans must with calm and sober understanding tread the sacrificed way of fulfillment of their hard and inevitable obligations, he said, in order to attain national, cultural and economic freedom through material sacrifices.

The chancellor also declared that the unity of the German empire, in accordance with the Weimar constitution, must be safeguarded.

The foreign minister, Dr. Stresemann, addressing an election meeting at Darmstadt, warned against any belief that the situation would be changed by tearing up the Versailles treaty.

PARTIES DEVELOP CAMPAIGN LINES ON SCANDAL PIVOT

Democrats Have Advantage of Offensive as G. O. P. Seeks To Wash Off Oil Taint.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER. Washington, March 23.—Leaders in each political party are developing their campaign plans upon the conviction that the scandal developments will be the pivot around which the presidential fight will be waged.

Roughly, the two plans of campaign to be followed this summer are as follows:

1. Democratic leaders are bent on turning their campaign into a crusade in which they will attempt to show that the republican party is entangled hopelessly with great private interests and that the administration has been engaged in relations with these interests, some unlawful and some technically legal but harmful to the public interest. To this end they are seeking to nominate a candidate who will be invulnerable against charges of unethical conduct either in his private or official life.

G. O. P. On Defensive.

2. Republican leaders, already determined to nominate President Coolidge, are planning a shrewd defensive. They will disclaim responsibility for the conduct of Albert B. Fall, and will emphasize that an attempt is being made to undo his work. They will insist that this affair is being used as the basis for a general campaign of mud-slinging inspired by political motives. Finally, they will dwell on Coolidge's attempts to obtain tax relief, constructive legislation to help the farmers, and his efforts to keep public affairs on an even keel during the present excitement.

Pitfalls Are Numerous.

Not in years has there been a situation so full of pitfalls and requiring so much astuteness and courage on the part of the directing generals of the two parties. For the democrats there is the constant danger of overplaying their hand and bringing about a reaction such as the republicans precipitated in the Blaine campaign with the slogan, "Rumanism and Rebellion." For the republicans there is the danger of underestimating the effect of the network of charges now being made in the senate investigations.

Democratic leaders are endeavoring

WOMAN ATTORNEY CHOSEN TO BATTER STINSON EVIDENCE

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt Slated To Cross-Examine Roxie Stinson for Daugherty.

MAL DAUGHERTY TO BE CITED FOR CONTEMPT

Refusal of Attorney General's Brother To Permit Examination of Books Rouses Wheeler's Ire.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Washington, March 23.—The third week of the Daugherty investigation opens tomorrow with Miss Roxie Stinson, divorced wife of Jess Smith, friend of Attorney General Daugherty, ready to conclude her amazing story of "deals" in whisky, prize fight films, drugs and big politics.

Tomorrow, Miss Stinson is to undergo cross-examination with the bare possibility of a matching of women's wits. The questioning may be conducted by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general. Arrangements had been made to have Mrs. Willebrandt, who followed the testimony all day yesterday, undertake the examination, but a federal grand jury engagement may prevent what promised to be a spectacular feminine duel.

To Read Smith's Letters. In closing her story which opened the Daugherty investigation, Miss Stinson is to finish reading her letters from Jess Smith and other papers which, she says, support her long and startling tale of "deals" which she says involve Smith, Mr. Daugherty and others of the attorney general's official and personal entourage, since he took office.

The Dempsey-Carpenter prize fight film exhibition "deal" and whisky "deals" including the $200,000 New York bootlegging story given by John Goroni also are to be developed this week. Fred C. Quimby, New York partner of Tex Rickard in the film affair, and William A. Orr, New York republican politician, connected in the testimony with both the film and New York whisky transactions, are under orders to return here tomorrow. Both have been ill since their first appearance and the period of their further examination is uncertain.

Wheeler Is Peeved. Further developments are promised in the committee's dispute with M. S. Daugherty, brother of the attorney general, over examination of the books of his bank, the Midland National at Washington Court House, Ohio. A contempt fight in the federal courts appeared tonight to be the probable result. Word from Ohio today that Mr. Daugherty would refuse the committee unlimited access to the bank records brought from Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, prosecutor of the inquiry, the statement that the committee would "go to the limit" in enforcing its demands.

Inspection of all customers' accounts is the demand upon which the committee and the bank head are divided. The attorney general's council is insisting that only the accounts of customers which are relevant to the investigation should be subject to committee inspection. Senator Wheeler threatens to require submission of the original books now in Mr. Daugherty's possession, an unlimited inquiry by a committee representative in Ohio.

Parallels Oil Probe Events. The bank book and other affairs of the Daugherty committee are bringing it parallel in several ways to the oil committee's inquiry. The oil committee also has a contempt proceeding in abeyance over the refusal of Harry F. Sinclair to give further testimony. Senator Wheeler said tonight that M. S. Daugherty would be cited for contempt before the senate if he should remain obdurate regarding his bank's examination. Mr. Daugherty is due here tomorrow to answer the new subpoena issued.

Another parallel between the Daugherty and oil committees which developed tonight was the journey to Havana, out of committee jurisdiction, of witnesses desired by both committees. At least one witness whose testimony is sought by the oil committee is said to be in Cuba and tonight Senator Wheeler said W. F. Underwood, desired by the Daugherty committee, is reported to be in Havana. A subpoena for Underwood sent to Palm Beach, Fla., was returned unserved. Underwood has been named by witnesses as having received thousands of dollars on both the fight film and whisky "deals." Senator Wheeler said he felt confident Underwood would appear before the committee.

No Immunity for Muma.

There may be a brief diversion tomorrow from testimony on films, whisky and other affairs for another minor development of the alleged participation by American oil interests in Mexican revolutionary affairs. A former department of justice agent named Gerson has been waiting here some time to testify on that subject. So many witnesses are waiting their turn before the committee that some congestion has developed. Gaston B. Means, former department of justice agent, who furnished some of the major sensations of the hearings, has not finished his testimony, and Jap Muma, New York representative of the McLean publishing interests, and an outstanding figure in testimony relating to fight film deals, is under subpoena. Committee members however, said tonight it was probable Muma may not take the stand because they believed it would not be desirable to this grant him immunity from possible prosecution should the government decide to act in the matter.

morning on the same train with the manufacturers who make the creations they are to wear for the delight of the Atlanta public. The fashion review will be staged on the second floor during the morning, and in the afternoon on the third floor. Appearance of the pretty models will prove one of the features of the opening day program.

Clothing Leaders Here.

Among the leaders of the American clothing industry who are in Atlanta for inauguration of Rich's new store are: Edward L. Mayer, president of the New York city, recognized as the dean of ready-to-wear men; M. Rubin of the Atlantic Hosiery Mills; Herman Rosenheim, president of the Best-Ever Slipper company; C. M. Guggenheim, of C. M. Guggenheim, Inc.; Al Fecheimer, of New York, ready-to-wear; Abe N. Adelson, of Abe N. Adelson company, millinery; Michael Wolf, of J. and M. Wolf company; Frank Rabinowitz, milliner; Arthur Reis, of Robert Reis & Co.; Simon Ottinger, of Goetz & Ottinger, ready-to-wear; John Block, of Kirby, Block & Fisher, ready-to-wear; Rich's in New York, and Jack Amsterdam, ready-to-wear.

Upon their arrival here Sunday they were conducted over the store by officials of the Rich company, and were lavished in their praise of the new enterprise and enthusiastic in their comment on the aggressiveness of the firm in erecting such a modern and complete structure.

See Fashion Review.

The visiting executives were spectators during the late afternoon at a rehearsal of the fashion review by the imported manikins. Those participating in the parade, wearing every type of dress from simple frocks to lavish gowns, were Elaine Williams, Dorothy Roper, Kirtie Rosenbaum, Adelaide Lubers, Mae Sullivan, Estelle Foute, lean national chairman, would tell the committee that the report that 75,000 shares of Sinclair oil stock in the settlement of the committee deficit was true.

Mr. Hays, on the witness stand yesterday, denied any stock transaction had taken place, but said Sinclair had agreed to contribute $75,000 to the committee.

The committee decided not to call Joseph J. O'Neill, assistant to Mr. Hays in his New York office, but will read a telegram from him denying he had given out the story of the stock transaction.

Carmi A. Thompson, of Ohio, one of the Coolidge managers, will be heard by the committee this week in an effort to clear up gossip that an "oil deal" figured in the deliberations at the Chicago convention in 1920 which nominated Warren G. Harding for president. Al Jennings, former Oklahoma train robber and now an evangelist, also is to be heard in connection with his assertions that a million dollar fund was used to nominate President Harding. Jennings, who was subpoenaed in California, is expected to arrive in Washington Tuesday and probably will be put on the stand at once.

Upham Told to Bring Books. The time of arrival here of Fred W. Upham, republican national treasurer, to testify in regard to the Sinclair political contributions, is uncertain. Mr. Upham is in the west, but the committee expects to get his testimony out of the way some time during the week. He was instructed to bring to Washington all records bearing on funds received from the oil operator.

Martin J. Powers, attorney, and Charles P. Oelschlaeger, architect, both of Philadelphia, will be called before the committee this week for questioning about charges by Oelschlaeger that Powers had told him he was to get in on the Wyoming oil reservations through close connection with Attorney General Daugherty.

Committee Paths Cross.

Both the oil committee and the Daugherty committee have now crossed each other's paths at various places, especially in connection with the rumors of an oil deal at the Chicago convention, but the committee chairmen gave no indication tonight as to whether there would be a switching of witnesses from one committee to another in an effort to disentangle and reassert the evidence in sequence.

The democratic national committee in a statement issued tonight with the approval of John Barton Payne, former secretary of the interior, replied to charges that the democratic administration set a precedent for leasing of naval oil reserves.

"What the Wilson administration did," the statement said, "was to follow the national policy established by Presidents Taft and Wilson, and by congress when it passed the leasing law, to protect and conserve the naval reserves—to keep the oil for the use of the navy for some great emergency while Secretaries Fall and Denby deliberately defied this national policy, and secretly leased the reserves, thus destroying the reserves."

The statement said not a single claim was allowed nor a single lease made as to naval reserve No. 1. As to reserve No. 2 it was found claimants had brought in about 50 productive wells. Those under the mandatory provisions of the leasing act were leased to the claimants. With approval of the secretary of the navy and the president, other wells were leased where it was apparent private wells were draining the reserve.

"As to the reserve No. 3—the Teapot Dome," the statement said, "all of the claims were rejected and no leases were made."

Although the Wilson administration left reserve No. 3 intact, the statement said, upon recommendation of Secretaries Denby and Fall the powers and discretions of the president and secretary of the navy were transferred to Secretary Fall, and the validity of this order will be decided by the courts.

amount paid after his return is audited by the treasury. With the principle that it is advisable to permit the taxpayers to get the benefit of the expected surplus in 1924 by a reduction of 25 per cent of the tax payable in the calendar year 1924, I am thoroughly in accord. There may be considerable administrative difficulty in the particular method which is contemplated by the resolution.

"It seems to me it would be simpler, and certainly preferable, from the standpoint of the treasury, if the plan incorporated in the revenue act of 1924 in the form it was passed by the house were adopted in a separate resolution."

Make June Payment Light. Under this plan if the resolution were passed before June 15, the taxpayer could take on that day a credit of 25 per cent of his March payment plus 25 per cent of his June payment. In September he could take 25 per cent of his September payment and in December 25 per cent of that payment. If he had paid in full in March he would have refunded the 25 per cent credit.

The finance committee will resume work tomorrow with a showdown voteable whether the soldier bonus bill will be put ahead of the tax measure as asked by the American Legion. Chairman Smoot has predicted that time would be necessary for disposition of the bonus bill, with "times fairly well drawn, republicans supporting in general an insurance measure along lines of that adopted by the house, and democrats favoring a full cash payment option."

House Busy on Army Bill.

Tuesday the house will resume debate on the army bill which began yesterday, and during the week the independent officers' appropriation bill will be reported and taken up when the army bill is out of the way. The immigration bill and the Chandler-Bloom election contest from New York are expected to follow.

Some leaders expect the house agricultural committee to report a farm relief measure during the week. The McNary-Haugen bill is under consideration by the committee. The judiciary committee is expected to present a resolution for a child labor constitutional amendment on which Representative Longworth, Ohio, the republican leader, has said there will be action at this session.

DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY

REV. J. R. FLEMING SPEAKS AT A. M. E. SERVICE SUNDAY

"The evil spirit which exists among many of the colored people in high positions does more harm in destroying the progress of the race and lessening the influence of the church than anything else," declared Rev. J. R. Fleming, presiding elder of Washington district of the A. M. E. church, speaking Sunday morning in St. Paul A. M. E. church.

Rev. J. A. Hadley, presiding elder of the South Atlanta district, said the success of the race will depend upon the religious training it receives and the faith it has in its leaders. Rev. C. G. Gar, pastor, made an appeal to raise $2,000 for the benefit of paying the man debts of the church, and to remodel the church by adding a rest room and kindergarten.

Rev. R. R. Holmes, president of the Holmes institute, delivered a very interesting sermon in the chapel of the institute Sunday afternoon. His subject was "The Spirit Filled Life." Rev. Thornton made the closing remarks.

HUSBAND DESIRED INVALID AS WIFE; SHE GAVE HIM ONE

Tulsa, Okla., March 23.—That she shot herself in the leg intentionally to become an invalid to satisfy the "brutal wish" of her husband, was the statement of Mrs. Georgia Thomas in a petition for divorce from Orville Thomas, wealthy cigar man of Tulsa.

The shooting took place January 23, 1923, after an all night ride in a motor car in which the couple quarreled over an alleged suitor, Mrs. Thomas stated in her petition, which was filed in district court here yesterday. She charges "extreme cruelty."

"My husband gave me the money to purchase the pistol," Mrs. Thomas further stated.

Mrs. Thomas said her husband would only love her and dispel his fits of jealousy when she had become an invalid or injured for life. "I shot myself because I loved him and wanted to please him," she added.

History of Adair And of Rich Firm Linked 86 Years

An interesting side light on opening today of the new Rich building is the fact that the history of the house links closely with it that another of Atlanta's pioneer institutions—the Adair Realty & Trust company, which firm, at the expiration of the present lease on the building in 1971, will have served lessees for 86 continuous years.

Morris Rich on the one side, for and president of M. Rich & Brothers company, is the only survivor of the original transaction negotiated in 1838 on the old Whitehall street property, between his company and Colonel George W. Adair, founder of the firm known today as the Adair Realty & Trust company. Forrest Adair, president of the Adair Realty & Trust company is today the only survivor of the original transaction on his company side.

The two pioneer companies, Adair and Rich, had their beginnings within two years of each other. Adair being established in 1835 and Rich in 1837. It is a remarkable fact that since 1885, at the time of the firm's expansion, every subsequent lease or sale in connection with this company has been handled by the Adair organization.

Thirty-nine years already have elapsed since completion of the transaction involving the first lease. For seven years of the present unusual lease still remains, the end of which period, 1971, will mark the closing of 86 years' continuous relations between these two companies.

GEORGIAN IS HELD IN MURDER CASE

Columbia, S. C., March 23.—W. H. Covington, of Lexington, Ga., is being held by the peace officers of Lexington county, S. C., for investigation in connection with the murder of F. R. Mason, of St. Albans, Vt., with head battered and throat cut, as found six miles from Columbia yesterday. The murder, officers believe, happened between 8 and 11 o'clock on the night of Sunday, March 23, with robbery as a motive.

Covington, according to statements made by him to officers, had traveled with Mason for several months, but had left him three weeks ago and had secured work as a carpenter at New Brookland, S. C., and declared he had not seen Mason since that time.

When arrested early this morning at the home of George Kessler, eight miles west of Lexington, S. C., officers said, he had a small grip containing some of the automobile polish sold by Mason.

Covington, officers added, declared that a nephew of his, Charles Rogers, an automobile mechanic, had been traveling with Mason for several months, being employed by Mason at Birmingham, Ala., and was with Mason when Covington took up new work.

It developed that Covington resigned his carpentry work Saturday and officers are now checking his alibi that he was in Columbia the night of Sunday, March 23, the supposed time of the murder.

Rogers is being hunted by the police as the man who abandoned Mason's light coupe five miles west of Lexington, S. C., the night of the supposed murder. Persons who saw the man who abandoned the coupe declare that Covington is a much older man than the coupe driver.

Officers have been in communication with a sister of Mason's who lives at Binghamton, N. Y., and according to information received from her, Mason is a divorcee and has a daughter living at Binghamton and two sons in Vermont.

LEAGUE ARMS BODY PLANS TREATY TEXT

Paris, March 23.—The sub-committee of the league of nations' treaty armament committee is at a conference here today to prepare a text to reach an agreement on the text of a convention for the control of the private manufacture of arms.

The object is to find some form of agreement to take the place of the convention signed at St. Germain in 1919, which the United States was unable to ratify.

At the meeting, lights of the disarmament movement in the league of nations will be present, including Viscount Cecil of Chelwood (formerly Lord Robert Cecil); Senator O'Grady, (Columbus M. Larkin, France, who will preside, and Colonel Carnegie, of Canada.

Joseph G. Grew, the American minister to Switzerland, will give the commission moral support by his unofficial presence.

The St. Germain convention, shorn of the features that were objectionable to the American government, will, with a proposal by Admiral Mizoguchi, of Spain, and another by M. Jouhaux, of France, which provide for the absolute suppression of the private manufacture of arms, be taken as the basis for discussion.

A plan prepared by Colonel Carnegie, of Canada, will form the basis for discussion of the question of control of private traffic in arms and munitions. The result of the sub-committee's deliberations will go first to the full committee at its next meeting and then to the council of the league which, if it approves the text, will pass it on to the next assembly.

ARCHBISHOPS TURN CARDINALS TODAY

Rome, March 23.—Before the sun sets again on the eternal city, Archbishop Hayes, of New York, and Archbishop Mundelein, of Chicago, will be cardinals of the Roman Catholic faith.

Although their investiture with the scarlet robes and hats and other trappings of that high ecclesiastical office will not take place until the public consistory in the basilica of St. Peter's Thursday morning they will assume officially their place as princes of the church tomorrow from the moment of the reading of the papal "buletto" which will be delivered to them by special pontifical emissaries immediately after the consistory in the hall of the consistory at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Pope's Allocution Ready.

All directly concerned in tomorrow's ceremony spent part of Sunday in final preparation. The pope, it is understood, virtually has finished composing his allocution, which probably will contain passages highly significant and interesting to the American branch of the church. It will be made public only after the secret consistory.

The two archbishops also put the finishing touches on their addresses of gratitude, which will be delivered after receipt of the buletto. Clad in the vestments of archbishops, they will appear in the morning to await official nomination from his holiness, which will be borne ceremoniously by three papal carriers.

GIRL STUNT FLYER INJURED IN FALL

Jacksonville, Fla., March 23.—Mabel Cody, stunt flyer, received serious injuries today when she fell from an airplane to which she had just leaped from a speeding automobile at Pablo Beach, near here. She succeeded in seizing the ladder hanging from the plane, but lost her hold fifty feet up.

Miss Cody was taken to a hospital in an unconscious condition, but it was said her injuries would not prove fatal. Witnesses said the rung of the ladder to which she clung broke, causing her to lose her grip. The automobile was traveling about 75 miles an hour and the plane about ninety. It was said at the time of the accident which was witnessed by several thousand persons.

After the leap to the plane, Miss Cody was scheduled to do the "dances of death" on top of a wing. Her home is in Newport News, Va.

RED LANTERN OUT TO WARN SINNERS, DECLARES PASTOR

The great tribulation preceding the millennial reign of Christ on earth is upon the world, according to Rev. E. D. Davis, who preached Sunday night at the Gospel Tabernacle.

"It is very evident to the casual observer," he said, "that the earth since 1914 has had great tribulation. The greatest war, great famines and great earthquakes have come with their suffering and horrors. If coming events cast their shadows before them the great tribulation is now upon the world."

"I can never read in God's Word, God's program of the things that His promises are certain to this earth. I do not feel like praying: 'O, be ye reconciled to God.' O, that sinners might be aroused to seek God's face while there is opportunity."

"Suppose you are ready before God comes. Suppose you are ready five years before He comes, what of it? It will be five years of glory. But suppose you are ten minutes late. If you hurry to catch a train and it has been gone ten minutes it is then too late to overtake it."

"God has hung out the red lantern of warning so that it cannot escape the notice of any person. Watch therefore and pray always that ye may escape the things that come to pass in the last days and stand in the heavenly judgment."

PRICES FOR CHILDREN AT CIRCUS REDUCED

Realizing that circus day is one of the most important events in a child's life, Manager Charles Sparks, of the Sparks Circus which will exhibit in Atlanta April 4 and 5, announces a radical departure in prices that should prove most attractive to the young set.

At both performances here children under the age of 12 are to be admitted for 30 cents, including war tax.

Mr. Sparks writes: "Owing to high cost of practically everything used by our circus, we are unable at present to reduce the price of adult tickets, for which we charge the standard price of 75 cents. Knowing that the circus is primarily a children's entertainment, we gave the little ones first consideration when we felt that business conditions warranted a price reduction, and believe that a far greater number of children will now be able to attend the circus."

Seats can be secured circus day at Jacobs Pharmacy No. 11 opposite Piedmont hotel at the same prices as at show grounds. Sparks Circus will exhibit at Spillers Park (opposite ball grounds).

START REBUILDING KELLEY'S CHAPEL, BURNED WEEK AGO

Decatur, Ga., March 23.—(Special.)—Despite the fact that sufficient funds to insure its completion have not yet been guaranteed, work will be started Monday to rebuild Kelley's chapel, which burned to the ground March 16 as the congregation battled the flames.

At a meeting held today in a sunlit house which is being used temporarily as a church, it was decided to accept the offer of stone donated by a neighbor to be used in the foundation, and hauling is to be started tomorrow.

The new church is to be built on the same site as the one destroyed, and a committee was appointed today to decide whether the structure will be of brick or wood, and other details.

It is estimated that the church can be built for $5,000, and an intensive drive to raise that amount will start Monday.

SPARTA SAFELOWERS ARE STILL AT LARGE

and blue tile, and the windows will be draped with gingham in colors to match the floor covering. The furniture will be white enamel.

Decorators Busy.

During the next six days the decorators will be busy every minute day and night putting on the final touches in the Home Beautiful exhibit. Draperies are being hung in house number one and in house number two today, and as the furniture has already been delivered, it only remains for the little things, which after all make a home livable, to be selected and placed where they belong. Pictures will be selected to suit each room, and when everything is completed these two houses will be closed entirely until they are opened for public inspection next Sunday.

As an indication of the interest in home-making the "Home Beautiful" exhibit is creating a number of people each day are begging to be admitted to the houses. Of course this cannot be done, as the houses have not been put in order, and the decorators fear that if people are admitted before they are completely furnished, they will go away with the wrong impression, and so, if anyone is refused admittance to either of the

Decorators Busy.

During the next six days the decorators will be busy every minute day and night putting on the final touches in the Home Beautiful exhibit. Draperies are being hung in house number one and in house number two today, and as the furniture has already been delivered, it only remains for the little things, which after all make a home livable, to be selected and placed where they belong. Pictures will be selected to suit each room, and when everything is completed these two houses will be closed entirely until they are opened for public inspection next Sunday.

As an indication of the interest in home-making the "Home Beautiful" exhibit is creating a number of people each day are begging to be admitted to the houses. Of course this cannot be done, as the houses have not been put in order, and the decorators fear that if people are admitted before they are completely furnished, they will go away with the wrong impression, and so, if anyone is refused admittance to either of the houses during this week, it is only because the sponsors want everything perfect before any one sees them.

The Home Beautiful exhibit is a movement, inaugurated by The Constitution, in cooperation with the retail merchants of Atlanta with but one object in view—to place before you examples of homes, which have been furnished, to be made livable, attractive and homelike, and in which extravagance has been eliminated.

The exhibit will be open next Sunday, March 30, at 1 o'clock, and will be open each day from 1 to 10 o'clock through April 6. Everything will be done to make you feel welcome. There will be no attempt made to sell you anything, as the show is purely and only an exhibit of education. Everyone is invited and there will be no charge of any kind.

START REBUILDING KELLEY'S CHAPEL, BURNED WEEK AGO

Decatur, Ga., March 23.—(Special.)—Despite the fact that sufficient funds to insure its completion have not yet been guaranteed, work will be started Monday to rebuild Kelley's chapel, which burned to the ground March 16 as the congregation battled the flames.

At a meeting held today in a sunlit house which is being used temporarily as a church, it was decided to accept the offer of stone donated by a neighbor to be used in the foundation, and hauling is to be started tomorrow.

The new church is to be built on the same site as the one destroyed, and a committee was appointed today to decide whether the structure will be of brick or wood, and other details.

It is estimated that the church can be built for $5,000, and an intensive drive to raise that amount will start Monday.

SPARTA SAFELOWERS ARE STILL AT LARGE

Sparta, Ga., March 2.—(Special.)—After investigation no clue has been found as to the robbers who attempted to loot the safe of the Georgia railroad depot here Friday night. It is generally conceded that the job was the work of amateurs. The safe, however, will require an expert to open.

BIG STATE PROBLEM.

The importance of conserving the manpower of Georgia by a more unified and systematic attention to the prevention of preventable diseases is being stressed by the State-Wide Health Association of Georgia.

There is no economic problem in the state of greater importance. There is none that should call for more vigorous attention of commercial and civic clubs and all groups interested in the material welfare of the state.

The statement has been made, and it is literally true, that Georgia suffers each year a greater financial loss through preventable diseases than from the boll weevil. The hookworm is preventable and yet it infests certain parts of Georgia to a lamentable extent, sapping vitality, and rendering almost useless the energy of those who are victims.

Dengue fever is preventable and yet millions of dollars' worth of human energy, computed upon the scale of accepted day wages, is lost in Georgia every year by reason of it.

Malaria is preventable, yet it is the most merciless bandit of them all, and the manpower loss, in loss of time from work, amounts into the millions each year.

Typhoid fever is preventable, and yet Georgia heads the list in the fatality of victims. Measuring all of these losses in money, leaving out the permanent incapacities, the anguish, the heart throbs—looking at the situation from a cold-blooded material standpoint—is it not strange that more general concern is not given to the question of eradicating from the state the diseases that are preventable. Screening houses, drainage, sanitation and various methods of making life more comfortable any way serves the double purpose of preventing diseases.

One must not assume that the loss of one's time from factory or field or business covers all of the losses produced by preventable diseases. Industry suffers, farm production suffers, community spirit suffers, education suffers—indeed the indirect losses are perhaps heavier than the direct losses which alone can be computed.

There should be a general awakening in Georgia to the importance of the great economic problem, and it should be met—and met deliberately and vigorously.

STORY OF BILLY SHOWLES.

There is something pathetic in the news from New York that Billy Showles, the king of bareback riders, who thrilled audiences of three continents, is now dying, a broken and forgotten old man, in a charity ward at Bellevue hospital.

Old patrons of Barnum and Bailey and Forepaugh and Sells and Ringling Brothers' circuses will well recall the name. He was not only recognized to be the world's greatest rider, but he was a fine chap, and had many friends among the boys in the press boxes.

It was one of them who found him a day or two ago tucked away in the corner, unable to work, and slowly but surely passing. He had ridden privately for the kings and emperors of the old world, and had been the personal friend of the late President Roosevelt. But all of that, forgotten now, for Billy Showles had to give up the "big top" years ago, and his great skill could avail him nothing in other lines of work. He finally got a job as an elevator operator and it was from this that he was taken to the hospital.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

NOW, THEN, SLIM ONES.
I'm through preaching to the fat folks and warning them of the dangers ahead if they keep on the way they're going—I'm through for the season. They'll have to worry along somehow without my attention for the rest of this season. I promised in an impassioned moment in one of my sermons to the toots, that I should consider the thin ones all in good time. I have been coddling my own few brains and beating the books, as it were, for something helpful to say to them, and I can't find a darn thing that isn't stereotyped, not in the books anyhow, but I'll do my best with a thing or two I found rattling around in my own brain. Of course these things weren't born or created de novo in my brain—they must have got in there some time or other through my eyes or my singular sense of hearing. When I say I get an idea out of my own head, I mean, of course, that I can't remember offhand just where I did borrow it or maybe I prefer to let on I don't know lest I give too much credit to some one else. That is the way with most ideas folks get out of their own heads, isn't it? Thin people are undernourished. Now in order to avoid any unpleasantness let us clearly understand what undernourished or poorly nourished or poor nutrition means. It doesn't mean that a person is thin, or that he is kind and variety of food. It means simply that the individual is underweight. Yet that isn't the only test of malnutrition, for some persons who are a little underweight are healthy and normal nevertheless. But the ratio of body weight with height is generally taken as the index of nutrition for persons of the same age. The majority of cases of undernutrition or malnutrition occur among people who are fairly well to do. Sometimes it is a matter of individual fault of appetite, as in a child with an indigestion, and sometimes it is a matter of poor food. Sometimes it is a matter of poor food, as in a household where the food is not properly selected, as in a household where the food is not properly selected, as in a household where the food is not properly selected.

There seems to be no fixed "retiring age" for the business man who has made work his motto and has found joy in it. He mustn't be in a hurry to get "out of the picture." Gray hairs and perhaps a slower gait in the going may suggest early retirement to those who can well afford it, but nowadays even the millionaire sticks to business along with the younger men in his employ, and is ready for a day's work soon after the sun wakes up the day.

For the work habit is the hardest thing in the world to do away with. Writing of this in his daily "Bits of New York Life," in The Constitution, O. O. McIntyre says:

"New York is no place for the man of leisure. Men who retire usually leave the city. Unless they plunge into the dizzy vortex of the high life, they find themselves out of the picture. If by chance they do remain here they become irretrievable cynics. The pace is too swift for the haggard. Friends have no time to help the self-made maroon while away the hours on the isle of retirement. Three men who gave up business shortly after they had passed the age of 40, a year ago, have returned to their desks. They said they had never spent such unhappy weeks as they did loafing."

And as with New York, so it is elsewhere in the business world. Dropping out of the progressive march is not the good thing it is cracked up to be—provided one can "keep step." It takes much of the joy out of life for many.

When Mr. Bok announced his retirement from the editorial chair of the Ladies' Home Journal, he said: "Now I am going to play." But he didn't—to any extent. He was soon busy as ever, planning for the welfare of his city and the betterment of humanity in general, as his world-famous peace plan attests.

Business has its playgrounds, and they help to keep it going; they make for health and happiness, but all play would soon put it "Out of the Picture."

BILLBOARD BLOTCHES.

The Women's Civic League of New Orleans has followed the action of the civics department of the New Orleans Federation of Clubs in going on record as strongly condemning billboard advertising in the residential sections of that city. The league even went further than to condemn, and petitioned council to have the boards removed "in the interest of the safety, morality, health and decency of the community."

All over the country there is a movement against billboard advertising, as it is today being conducted.

The fact is available space on every street in a big city is taken up almost entirely with these big board signs, and they are not only a harbor for trash, garbage and rubbish, thus menacing the health of the people, but they are too frequently made a community nuisance.

The supreme court of Louisiana recently held that billboards are a nuisance.

Some of the Washington politicians have discovered that they haven't "sand" enough to get anywhere on an oiled track.

Better late than never, even though they didn't think of house cleaning until an earthquake shook the foundations.

Of course, the people "expect congress to know what it's there for," but great expectations are seldom realized.

The next safety warning for the limited trains may be: "Look out for the auto when you hear the honk-honk."

Bergdoll claims the pot of gold discovered recently in Maryland, but they can't get him to come and identify it.

The women are shooting pretty straight now, but every little while a nimble husband manages to dodge a bullet.

The outlook is that it won't be long now until straggling winter is pelted away with blossoms.

Just as March had made a reputation for mildness he remembered he had a grouch coming.

If the poets would just hush, perhaps Spring would tell a bird to chirp a note or two.

Not many people had heard of a Teapot Dome until the steam in the kettle lifted the lid.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Fate.
All the days of his life 15-year-old Henry Rogers had looked out upon the world through the windows of some institution. Every morning he awoke to the ringing of bells down the long corridors. He ate his meals at the clang of a gong and went to bed to the sound of bells. He stayed in the founding asylum till the age limit was reached and from there went to the Angels' Home, an institution for delinquent children. Never did Henry know the love of parents or relatives. Everything was cold, military and methodic lines. One night last week when the first warm breaths of spring waited over the Bronx, Henry had seized with a strange longing to be free. In the middle of the night he fastened bed sheets together to lower himself to the ground. The chameleon found a broken, huddled figure on the sidewalk he was shrouded in the sheets that would have brought him liberty.

Human Chameleon.

Gustave Brunsch, a Dane, is a puzzle to medical authorities in London. His skin has turned black, the strangest part of it is that this is the third time it has happened to Gustave. Twenty-eight years ago in West Africa he had yellow fever and he turned an unnatural yellow. Later he changed it to a ruddy florid complexion. The Dane is now under observation at the London hospital. Medical experts have discovered that he has not partaken of any metallic drugs or medicines to have caused a change in his color. He is as much a puzzle to the London doctors as the Italian imposter now under observation in Paris, who, it is said, shrouded himself in flames from his body.

Shah of Persia Poses His Crown to Infant Son

London, March 23.—The Persian shah has abandoned the idea of public, but has deposed the shah on the throne, according to a dispatch to the Daily Mail. The correspondent says a moment's sitting of the national assembly on the future form of government was held Saturday when, owing to the opposition of the clergy and public, the agitation in favor of a shah collapsed.

The new shah is two years old and will be appointed to act during his minority.

Julian Ahmed Mirza, shah of Persia, who abdicated in 1909, under the name of Reza Khan, took place in 1914.

The shah has been living in Paris, much antipathy to him has developed because of his long absence from his own country. Recently the shah moved from the palace in residence outside of Tehran.

The ceremonies conducted by the shah, or the recent, on the occasion of Persian new year were omitted, he discussion in parliament over the question of the establishment of a shah caused serious dissensions, fighting has occurred between the republican groups and the advocates of the republican cause.

Priceless Jewels Are Synonyms For Greatness

Since history is made up of comparisons we find that jewels have a place unrivalled as synonyms for greatness.

Great pieces of literature are referred to as "priceless gems." Scenes in picturesque countries are often spoken of as "bright jewels in prosaic surroundings."

Good deeds in the days of the knights of old caused them to be known as the "golden days of the Round Table."

The impression has been and is, that gold and silver, jewels and precious stones are lasting and therefore symbolic of the worthwhile and the great.

State's Most Beautiful Girls To Present Peach Pageant

GALAXY OF MAIDENS READY FOR FESTIVAL THURSDAY

Miss Thelma Wilson, who will represent the state of Georgia at the third annual peach blossom festival to be celebrated at Fort Valley Thursday, March 28. Miss Wilson is the daughter of J. A. L. Wilson, wealthy peach grower of middle Georgia.

BY MRS. C. N. ROUNTREE.
Fort Valley, Ga., March 22.—(Special.)

"The peach-tree blossoms have opened wide. What beauty they unfold! What wealth their tender petals hide. What wonders yet untold."

A sort of delicate pink covers the fruit belt of Georgia today, for spring is here, and in few places in the world can there be such a spectacle as that presented by the miles and miles of peach orchards here, when strong winds and sunshine coax the pink buds open.

It is a scene of unrivaled beauty and worth traveling miles to see. At Fort Valley, where the Georgia peach industry is enshrined, is planned to greet thousands of visitors Thursday at the Peach Blossom festival with a pink glow and a hearty welcome as they come to do homage to the peach.

Interest High.
Interest befitting the importance of such a pretentious affair is evident on all sides and no detail that will add to the comfort and entertainment of guests is being overlooked. Arrangements for parking cars has been perfected, the city will be policed by the American Legion assisted by secret service men and officers from Macon and Atlanta.

The morning's entertainment will include the parade of floats and decorated cars, an address by Major General David C. Snike, exhibition flights by United States army airplanes and concerts by the Twenty-ninth infantry, the Central of Georgia and shrine temple bands.

At noon an old-fashioned Georgia barbecue, Brunswick stew, coffee, pickles and bread will be served free.

Peach History.
The climax of the day's activities will be the history of the peach, which will be enacted in pageantry, taking two hours to present the story. The theme is well chosen and will be presented with an artistic splendor that is captivating.

In the steady march of civilization the peach has borne its part in the banquet of many different lands and times.

The pageant will be presented at Oakland Heights, where an amphitheater has been built to seat 10,000.

Pomona to Rule.
The band stand will be in the back ground, the throne and the royal retinue will be staged to the left, the Goddess Pomona with her train of attendants who will be sovereigns of the pageant.

The king and queen crowned in their famous royal robes will ride to the arena in a beautifully decorated float drawn by six handsome black horses furnished by the American Express company.

The harness is mounted in brass.

flowers, forms a fitting background for the motif of the exposition—the home—and has been accorded the admiration of those who have seen it.

"If there were not another thing in the auditorium, the scenery and decorations alone would be worth going miles to see," declared S. W. Bacon, Jr., director of the exposition, pointing out also that Taft hall, in pink and white, with a peach orchard background, would be equally appealing to lovers of things beautiful.

All day Sunday hundreds of interested Atlantans stopped at the auditorium in an effort to get a glimpse of the massive exhibits waiting for the opening, or to see the work that was still in progress on some of them, and during the latter part of last week the throng of daily spectators steadily grew so large that it became necessary to close the auditorium to visitors in order that the work could go on uninterrupted.

Will Get Their Reward.
Those who have waited eagerly for the opening will be rewarded for their patience when the exposition opens tonight, however, and preparations from all over the state, and it is known that some from as far as Chattanooga, Birmingham and Greenville, as well as Macon, Augusta and Savannah, will be in attendance.

While it would be utterly impossible to say which will be the most attractive exhibit out of the many large ones that will be seen, it is certain that the "Ideal Home" will come in for a share of admiration. While this exhibit is not intended to be held up as the ideal in size or arrangement for every class of family, it is declared to be ideal in every respect in its class, the class of home suited in size and cost for the average southern family. As seen when the exposition opens, it will be complete in every detail from foundation to roof, including everything that goes into a home except the occupants. It will be complete even to a maid, who will be in attendance throughout the week, and the home will represent the best design, materials, workmanship and furnishings.

Equally perfect and appealing in their various ways will be numerous other exhibits, and so numerous, so varied and so novel are they that one could easily spend the greater part of a week inspecting and admiring them without becoming bored.

WE CONGRATULATE GREATER RICH'S
---our Customers for 86 Years!

IN 1885, when this company had been in existence only twenty years, we first began serving Morris Rich, the founder and president of that institution which was destined to become the Greater Rich's of today.

From the original transaction marking Rich's first expansion; and the following move into the Whitehall Street Store, we have handled every lease, including the one on the site of the great new store.

The present lease runs until 1971 and at the expiration, Rich's and Adair will have been closely associated for 86 years.

We take this opportunity to congratulate heartily our more-than-lifetime friend and customer, M. Rich & Bros. Co. upon the realization of a lifetime dream—the most complete establishment of its kind in the South, and one of the most magnificent in the entire country. It is our earnest belief that this great enterprise, which has served Atlanta and the South for more than half a century, stands upon the threshold of new and greater achievements than ever before.

Sciple and Sons Company

Has Great Year in Business

Just like Atlanta's building record, which increases every month, business for the Sciple & Sons building material company comes up also. That organization has just finished a very successful year of business, and indications point to another excellent year. Prospects for the summer and spring are looking very bright. The company has contracts to build several big apartments and modern houses, and expects many more large contracts within the next week or so. This is the oldest building material house in the city, and holds the reputation of being one of the oldest mercantile establishments. It was established in 1872, about 52 years ago, and has been growing rapidly ever since. Charles E. Sciple and Charles M. Sciple are at the head of the firm.

For Mrs. Hughes

Set for Saturday

The battle to be waged by Attorney H. A. Allen to obtain a new trial for Mrs. Ida Hughes, now in Fulton jail under sentence of death for the murder of her mother-in-law Mrs. M. C. Hughes, will begin next Saturday, when Judge G. H. Howard hears the attorney's motion for new trial. If Judge Howard overrules the motion, the case will go to the supreme court. George H. Hughes, a new trial for the defendant, will set a date on which a new jury will hear the case against the second woman in Fulton county's history to receive the death sentence. Attorney Allen told a Constitution reporter Saturday night that the record in the case was about ready for drawing of the amended motion, which is to contain the assignments of alleged error on the court's charge to the jury and his rulings on the evidence. Mrs. Hughes' contention was that she had a right to kill her mother-in-law, who, she declared, was illegally searching her trunk. The victim had sworn out a possessory warrant, but the search was illegal because it had been illegally served by officers who were outside their jurisdiction.

BUSINESS OF TROY

LAUNDRY INCREASES

The Troy Laundry and Cleaning company, established in 1881, which is the oldest concern in that business in Atlanta, has had its usual good business in the last few months, and all indications will continue for a good while. This organization has been under the ownership of J. Frank Beck and George B. Beck, brothers, for the last 40 years, and during that time have done all in their power to give their customers the best of service. Their plant has been re-equipped several times, and is up-to-date in every convenience and the best of machinery, which is practically new in every department. This was the first laundry to do the entire washing for the family, and that is one of its specialties today. The motto is that "We sell service that is worth the price," and one hundred and fifty employees are on the pay roll at the present.

Discussions during the session here Friday and Saturday included pending postal legislation and other problems of service and other matters related to postmasters of third and fourth class. Atlanta was selected as the 1925 convention city.

CRACKER SQUAD TAKES DAY OF REST AT GRIFFIN CAMP

Bill Tilden's Case Offers Interesting Angles

Even Line of Difference Between Amateur Playing And Professional Sport

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

American Olympic team loss on a tennis play because of tennis rule against playing amateur and writing articles for money at one and the same time, with a contract for writing in the pay of $12,000 for his services, has been the subject of much discussion. The alternative of giving up profession or dropping out of the tennis competition. Naturally, he is to drop out.

Some cases the rule against amateurism is unfair. It seems so in this case. Presumably, his position is writing and he has been writing for several years. He is not giving up writing. No doubt the loss of his writings on sport are decreased by his reputation as a tennis player. If Tilden writes he finds that the best way to get an income, and plays tennis for sport, pleasure, exercise, and health there is in the game, he is not in fact if not in tennis as a profession.

He plays tennis to boost the reputation of his work as a writer. It is difficult to fairly draw the line between amateurism and professionalism in this way.

For the tennis players who do the work of writing, the staff should under their signatures, but accept pay for the use of their names, they are professional out and about. He is taken by the neck and the throat cut of the amateur, and immediately and out of time or sympathy.

He same goes for golfers. I've seen beautiful golf staffs. I've seen golfers who don't know a writer from a moving machine who keep their scores in their pocket.

Tilden has unusual writing ability. He has turned out a very fair fiction. Perhaps he would sell for as much as a tennis champion. But on the other hand if he wasn't tennis champion he might put a lot more interest into his writing. He might get a lot more money for his stuff.

There's another line for the tennis players to figure out. George Ade, one of Yale's famous crackbacks, is a chairman of the tennis amateur committee. He believes firmly that to athletes be an amateur and a professional is the same thing.

It is an amateur athlete can't write for money, he can't sell bonds, real estate, rent a coal, or anything else for money. Somebody might buy from him because of his athletic time. That is the line for the tennis players to figure out.

By the way, that is the old English idea of amateur sport. A man in the trades or professions could be a "gentleman amateur" as long as he didn't make a cent at the same time, so to speak. In England, a 16-year-old boy, first went to England in an amateur costume, he was the Diamond Sculls because the fish didn't know how well he rowed, and overlooked his dark skin. But next year when Ned was

FIRPO SEEKS A MOVIE JOB

Buenos Aires, March 23.—Luis Firpo, the Argentine heavyweight, who recently announced he would retire from the ring after his forthcoming bout with Al Reich, is willing to return to the United States to become a movie actor. Luis has a Los Angeles company asking if the offer of $210,000 made to him while he was in the United States to appear on the screen still was open. If it is, his message said, he was willing to accept it. Otherwise, he declared he intended to sail for Europe next month.

Firpo yesterday received a cablegram from Juan Homas, who formerly represented Tex Rickard in Buenos Aires, saying Homas sailed from New York Saturday with "interesting propositions from Rickard" and requesting Firpo not to enter into any engagements until he had received a letter from Homas.

Aires, Firpo said, however, that unless he obtained a favorable answer from Los Angeles he would surely sail for Europe, regardless of Homas' mission. He reiterated he was through with boxing.

Perrin Squad Loses To Feds

By a score of 6 to 2, the Commodore baseball team won from the Perrin Athletics team yesterday on the Federal prison grounds before a crowd estimated at 2,000.

The game was almost errorless, only one error made by each team. Two wonderful catches were made by Outfielders Barber and Schwartz, of the Feds. There were four two-baggers smashed during the afternoon. Josselyn and Coggins, of the Athletics registered one each. Childers and Katty, for the Commodores, also smashed blows for two bases.

A three-base hit by Morgan, for the Feds, started a rally that netted four runs and the game, in the sixth inning. The game was two all at this time. The Feds used three pitchers. While Milligan was on the hill the Athletics registered one each. Childers and Katty, for the Commodores, also smashed blows for two bases.

Fort Outfit Is Easy Winner, 8-0

Atlanta's annual Sunday amateur baseball season was opened yesterday afternoon at Fort McPherson, when the 22nd infantry nine defeated the War Hawks, 8 to 0.

The game was full of thrills despite the large score and some beautiful plays were made. For three innings the game looked as if a pitcher's battle was in store for the fans but in the fourth frame a single and a long double to left broke the scoreless tie and gave the infantry nine a lead.

The Fort McPherson baseball team has also been practicing for several weeks and has many strong amateur players in the city desiring Sunday baseball games can find an opponent in the Fort McPherson team, and a good diamond to play on.

For several past years many Atlanta baseball fans have found Fort McPherson a good place to spend the Sunday afternoon in witnessing amateur baseball games and the Fort authorities are planning to give the fans even better baseball this year than ever before.

There is no admission charged and the public is cordially invited to attend every game during the spring and summer months.

They have added a great deal of enthusiasm to the Huntsville organizations.

A VIEW FOR THE PAPER

Summer Rules for Football.

There's always something happening, to keep our vagrant thoughts hopping from sport to sport, even as the nimble caribou leapt from crag to crag. Now the football rules committee has up and made a whole flock of changes that will give the old grads something to talk about and look forward to when autumn's blasts set in and the stadia echo once more with locomotive yells and sweetly popping collar bones.

The most radical change affects the kick-off. It would seem that the football rules committee has decreed that winter rules no longer apply to the kick-off, except in moderated form. The kick-off must improve his lie by "heeling," but the ball must not be tied up in the fairway.

Of course we have never done a great deal of kicking off, but it appears that this step will make the matter rather difficult. Now is the time for some enterprising sporting goods concern to put out a brassie shoe, or perhaps a spoon boot, with which the ball may be lofted off the turf without any perceptible difficulty. A masher masher toe plate might do the work, but I shudder to think of what would happen to a 220-pound tackle's dogs if he happened to take too much turf.

It would appear, further, that the new method of kicking off would put fallen arches at a premium, for a flat-footed kicker could get under the ball with much more facility than one with normal instep. Another necessity for the augmentation of the coaching staff—an instructor in falling arches.

Intensifying the importance of this feature of the game, however, will hurt nothing, especially since a compromise has been effected by moving the kick-off spot to midfield. And the other changes will not affect the game so materially. The new penalty for excess time out should work for speed, and that's something these cold, dreary fall days. And changing the try for point after touchdown to the three-yard line isn't so radical as you might think. What's a yard or so among friends?

Bobby Jones and Walker Inman, opposed by Bill Spalding and Bip Farnsworth, won themselves a week-end golf match at the sixteenth hole, taking the match the full distance before completion. Bob and Inman were giving Bill and Bip three strokes a side and the concession was almost disastrous.

Bobby's card of 75 was the best turned in and he did that by virtue of a coming in to offset a 41 on the outward side. Spalding plays Skinny Brannon and Farnsworth plays Pete Drought Monday in the semi-final round of the Tech championship. Tech is taking its golf seriously this year, and still has some interesting intercollegiate competition to come, among the imminent features being the visit of the Alabama team here April 4, a trip to Knoxville shortly after, and the S. I. C. tournament still later.

PARKE'S CHANCES GREATER THAN OLD TIMERS' FITZGERALD

New York, March 23.—Ivan Parke, of meteoric rise as Parke, but his horsemanship has with the passage of time taken on a brilliancy that renders his place secure in the history of American race riders.

His success has not been a matter of luck for it took merit to put a rider in the position where he was in demand for the mounts.

Weight Is Remarkable. That a youth of his height should be able to ride at 115 pounds and even lighter on occasions is remarkable and calls for an amount of self sacrifice that is not appreciated save by those who are familiar with the demands of the occupation.

James McLaughlin, Edward H. Garrison and Fred Parke of the old school of American riders, were martyrs even in the days when weight-forage races were far more numerous than they are at present. They weighed as much as 140 pounds and were taking off every spring 25 pounds and keeping it off throughout the ensuing seven months of saddle activity drove these splendid horsemen one by one into retirement.

Perhaps the most striking example of martyrdom on the part of a jockey is illustrated by the career of the Fred Archer, whose record of winning 2,122 races in ten seasons speaks for itself. Archer weighed in the off season upwards of 145 pounds, yet with Spartan fortitude year after year he came to the scales at the Lincoln spring meeting prepared to ride at 122.

Archer often dined on a small glass of champagne and water biscuit. Naturally such methods brought their own punishment and when attacked by typhoid the great rider's system lacked powers of resistance and in delirium he shot and killed himself.

In this period when apprentice riders are enjoying so much popularity with contracts on neophytes in the saddle exchanging hands for from $5,000 to $15,000, it is fitting that the industry should remember the old school of American riders, whose names should be recollected. It might be read with profit by those who have no knowledge of the turf in an earlier period when race riding called for something more than ability to swing from the post and hurry home.

New York Team Entered in Meet

Chicago, March 23.—The New York Athletic club has made a complete team entry for the national A. A. U. indoor swim, relay and track polo championships to be conducted here April 1-4, it was announced Sunday.

The water polo competition will be the final test for the Olympic relay polo championships to be held here April 1-4, it was announced Sunday. The team which wins in this event will qualify without further trials, the committee in charge announced.

Following the national events in Chicago, place will be held for the Olympic swimming and relay trials, to be held in Indianapolis July 13-14.

HUNTSVILLE TO RAISE NEW HOSPITAL FUND

Huntsville, Ala., March 23.—(Special.)—A campaign with the objective of raising $150,000 for the establishment of a new hospital will be opened in Huntsville Monday. A committee of 100 men and women has been appointed to put the proposition over and they are all enthusiastic over the prospects of success. It is declared that there is more interest and enthusiasm in this proposition than has been shown in any movement ever undertaken here and several subscriptions for large amounts have already been listed.

DISAPPROVAL MAY GREET CHANGES

New York, March 23.—One of the new rules just adopted here by the national collegiate football rules committee—that abolishing the mud tee for the kick-off—is expected to meet with the noisy disapproval of football players generally.

It is contended that much valuable time is lost in shaping the earth mound for each kick-off, and the committee ruled that in the future the kick should be made by the aid of a colleague holding the ball. Realizing that this will rob the kick of much weight and distance, the committee compromised by moving the ball ten yards ahead, or to midfield.

The chief asset of the mud-tee, as the players themselves view it, is that it gives the holder the right to the ball, permitting the ends to cover the player who runs back the ball.

Brown Is Named W. & L. Manager

Lexington, Va., March 22.—Dorothy H. Brown, Jr., of Birmingham, Ala., has been named manager of varsity basketball at Washington and Lee for next season, following the regular election of eligible men to the management for 1924-1925. The new manager has served in the capacity of assistant manager for the past two seasons and is well qualified for the position to which he has been named.

To assist him, the council has selected Charles J. Allison, Jr., also of Birmingham, and Thomas L. Sehorn, of Memphis, Tenn. Managerships at Washington and Lee are decided on a strictly competitive basis and come only after two years' service as assistants to the varsity managers. From a score of sophomore assistant managers each year, the athletic council, on recommendation from the manager and junior assistant managers, selects two men for the junior managers. These men serve throughout their junior year, at the end of which time one of them is selected as varsity manager for the following season. By following such a method the council is assured of having an experienced and capable man to handle the important job of a manager.

During the period of junior apprenticeship, one of the two managers of this class is selected to manage the freshman team during the season, while the other attends to the junior varsity or reserve outfit.

Golf AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

PLAYING FOR SLICE

RIGHT FOOT & TOE INCHES FORWARD - KEEP WEIGHT ON IT TILL BALL IS STRUCK. PLAY BALL OFF LEFT TOE.

OPEN FACE OF CLUB BY TURNING LEFT ELBOW UNDER AT TOP OF SWING. HIT ACROSS LINE OF PLAY

What are the important points in playing for a slice? Answered by W. L. HARMON, "The St. Louis Youngster" whose battering courage and sound golf enable him to finish well up in all the tournaments he enters.

Play Macon and Oglethorpe Wednesday and Thursday And Break Camp Friday

Griffin, Ga., March 23.—(Special.) After winning two games of baseball Saturday, one from Macon in Macon, 3 to 1, and one in Griffin from East Thomaston, 2 to 1, the Atlanta Crackers spent a deserved day of rest here on the Sabbath.

Most of them could be found at most any hour of the day on the golf links of the Griffin Country club trying a round or two over the nine hole course, while others of them were around the hotel playing pinochle, etc., with still others driving about the city with new-made friends in automobiles or standing around the street corners swapping tales on various and sundry subjects.

"Old Jupiter Pluvius" paid his almost daily visit late this afternoon for a short time though the sun still displayed a streak of timidity after his departure.

Today was the third and last Sunday on which Griffin could be acclaimed as bivouac of the Crackers. They will dish out two more exhibition games this week for the edification of the local fans before their departure and all invitations point to better contests than the previous engagements on local soil.

LOWRY ARNOLD VOICES NEED OF BIG GYMNASIUM FOR TECH

Georgia Tech's paramount need at present is a gymnasium, even if it must be had to the exclusion of any construction of new stands for several years to come, according to a letter from Lowry Arnold, president of Atlanta, to Dr. J. B. Crenshaw, faculty director of athletics at the North Avenue school.

Mr. Arnold, in his letter, declared he saw no need for any discussion of the comparative need of a gymnasium and new stands.

"As a matter of fact, the Thanksgiving day football game is the only season in which the seating capacity is taxed, and the wooden stands will certainly be satisfactory for a few years.

"The question is whether the Tech students are entitled to first consideration or an overflow crowd at one football game. If this sum of money, $250,000, is put into stands, it will probably be many years before Tech has a gymnasium, then more stands will be needed.

For All Students. "The entire body of Tech students should be considered first. A gymnasium, big and complete, and available not to athletes alone, but to every student in the school, would be the greatest assets that Tech would have if $250,000 should be put into a magnificent gymnasium. If I am not in error, part of this advertised building program in the big drive for funds put on by Tech contemplated a considerable sum for a gymnasium. I do not believe we have the legal or moral right to use any part of these funds for a grandstand.

"The development of the mind and body in the young go hand in hand. One depends on the other and neither is complete without the other. The

What are the important points in playing for a slice? Answered by W. L. HARMON, "The St. Louis Youngster" whose battering courage and sound golf enable him to finish well up in all the tournaments he enters.

Hope.

Prudence could scarcely remember afterwards what happened. There in the darkness of what had been Peter's laboratory, she fought like a little wildcat with the masked intruder. "Help! Help!" she shouted at the top of her voice. "Help! Quick!" She lunged on desperately to the thief, with a life-or-death determination that go he should not, till Peter's rightful property had been restored. Those papers at the desk he had been fumbling over—without a doubt they contained the whole, secret record of the sick man's experiments and forth coming invention.

This brute was deliberately robbing a blinded man—but she, Prudence, would sooner die than let him get away!

"Shut up, you fool!" The man had some sort of sword that he was desperately trying to twist about her mouth and head.

Prudence's courage did not fail her. Indeed, it seemed as though some super-human strength was given her, in this hour of need.

She struggled for those papers, calling breathlessly the while, though her voice seemed to come from very far away.

The man contrived to get his two hands on her throat, and a great, roaring noise surged in her ears, just like a mighty torrent.

Beneath it all, there was a queer realization that she had heard the creature's voice before.

Peter's invention! The work of months and at the same time a bright light flashed into the room.

Prudence's eyes were closed, but through her lids she was conscious of this brilliant, and then conscious of a crash that echoed through the place as someone literally hurled himself across the floor in the direction of the intruder, and—

She sat up painfully, dragging her eyes open, to perceive—oh! most astounding picture—Peter Armstrong with the masked man in his grip!

From behind her came a woman's scream, shrill, strident.

"You'll kill yourself! Leave him go!"—and, to add to the melee—Nurse Brown tottered forward.

But before another word was uttered, Peter had wrenched the mask from the intruder's face, revealing to the woman's startled gaze the fury twisted features of Bert Traymore.

"So it's you!" Peter shouted, and lunged out straight at him.

"You'll pay for this! You'll—" The blow was dodged by Traymore who ducked his head and made a wild dash for the door, shooting through it with what seemed to be the velocity of a six-inch shell.

The lamp which Nurse Brown had set down as she entered the laboratory behind her glimmering outfit still flooded the place with light, and the floor was strewn with loose leaves from a notebook, and various other documents.

Prudence leapt to her feet and ran to Peter, who was now swaying on his feet. She flung an arm about him, calling to the nurse:

"Quick! Help him!" Nurse Brown pulled herself to gether, and darted forward just as the invalid slipped helplessly against the girl.

"He fainted! How on earth he had the strength to get in here, God only knows," mumbled the woman, knowing Prudence to lay her patient on the floor. "There was no holding him back. I tell you. He had the power of Samson! But he'll never survive tonight's excitement, never in his condition."

She gave a stifled cry, and then she saw that it was—heaven be praised—Will Ogilvie.

"I say, what happened?" Will rushed past her and up to the recumbent figure on the floor. "Arm strong?—good God! Who brought him here?"

"He came himself," said Nurse Brown, in a shaky voice. "Miss Page was attacked by a thief, and nothing would hold Mr. Armstrong back. He was out of his bed and at the front door the moment he heard of the thing. I tried to stop him, but he flung me back with the strength of Samson. I tell you. So I grabbed up the lamp and overtook him just as he got in here."

"Did the fellow hurt him?" Will Ogilvie knelt down on the stone floor while Prudence carried the lamp nearer. "A chap, dashed past me across the fields just now, carrying hell-for-leather."

"It was Traymore, from the Towers," said Prudence with dry lips. Between them, they carried the sick man back to his bed, and then Will Ogilvie got a neighbor to hurry for the local doctor.

Will came back quickly. "I'm not going to leave you two women alone in the cottage, for fear this scoundrel of a Traymore—or his pals, maybe—come back and make a second attempt, said he. 'What was the reason for this?' 'Queried—wasn't it—how Janet and a premonition that something was going to happen in her absence—so she sent me back.'"

Prudence was trying to get hold of Peter's invention. It wasn't patented, you know. Prudence gave a half sob, gazing down at the unconscious face of the man she loved better than life itself.

"Then I'll run into the—what'd you call it—laboratory, and collect those papers."

Prudence was left alone for a moment, and in that moment came a sudden realization of a strange fact, a most astounding thought.

"When Peter tore the mask from Traymore's face, and shouted: 'So it's you, is it?' that sure went to prove—"

"I thought, Prudence, all a tremble with a palpitating hope—that surely went to prove that Peter's sight has suddenly come back to him."

"O they are going to sew in circles."

"Not of necessity will they sew in circles. It is a sewing circle. What in the names of senselessness could they sew in circles, numskull?"

"Maybe they would sew hoop skirts in circles."

"No, nothing of the whatsoever. You will go to the sewing circle, dot it all."

"But I couldn't sew in circles. Honestly, I couldn't sew even in a straight line. I couldn't sew anything."

"But inn, is right. I wouldn't butt in."

"I said button, not butt in."

"To sew buttons on in circles is positively foolish. The ladies must want to have some fun and choy at my expenses. I am agreeable but if I make chokes like you said, I could maybe be reasonably funny mitout."

"Why indeed? We will sing: 'When Ever I Sew, Mit the Sewing Bee.'"

Black Stands Out in Millinery.

There are certainly more black hats to the square inch in this spring's millinery lines than there were last year. The all black hat in small and medium shapes, in combinations of straw and fabric, is being featured just now.

In colors, red and black is reported as making a strong impression, and it goes almost without saying that the vogue for black and white in millinery continues. This combination apparently loses none of its distinction in dress, and millinery naturally follows suit.

In hair hats the lighter colors prevail, says the Dry Goods Economist.

All shades in the purple range, including orchids, pansy and cyclamen, are stressed, also cinnamon and cocoa tones. The all red hat is featured in large garden or picture types by some establishments, in small tailored models by others, and again makers are met who do not feature red, although they carry two or three models just to keep in step.

Navy blue has attained excellent standing in the tailored lines, but the powder blue is not as yet making much impression in millinery.

Clusters of roses seem to be a replacement of the brush, a concession to the spring season, without too much digression from the tailored mode. For the most part flower trimming is in applique forms, roses set on flat and close together, in pastel or metal shades, encrusted as it were upon the surface of the hat. Flower trimming comes more into use every day.

Ribbon is employed more than ever, if that be possible, considering its long vogue. Wide satin ribbon, sometimes moire on the reverse side, may trim in symmetrical loops each side, or in smart one sided bows. Belting ribbon is amazingly strong, used for entire hats or for trimming.

The drop in cotton is reflected in weakness of grey cloth prices, however, feeling that such an increase in price would tend to lessen buyers' interests, have set seven and one-half per cent as about the limit of advance in a general way.

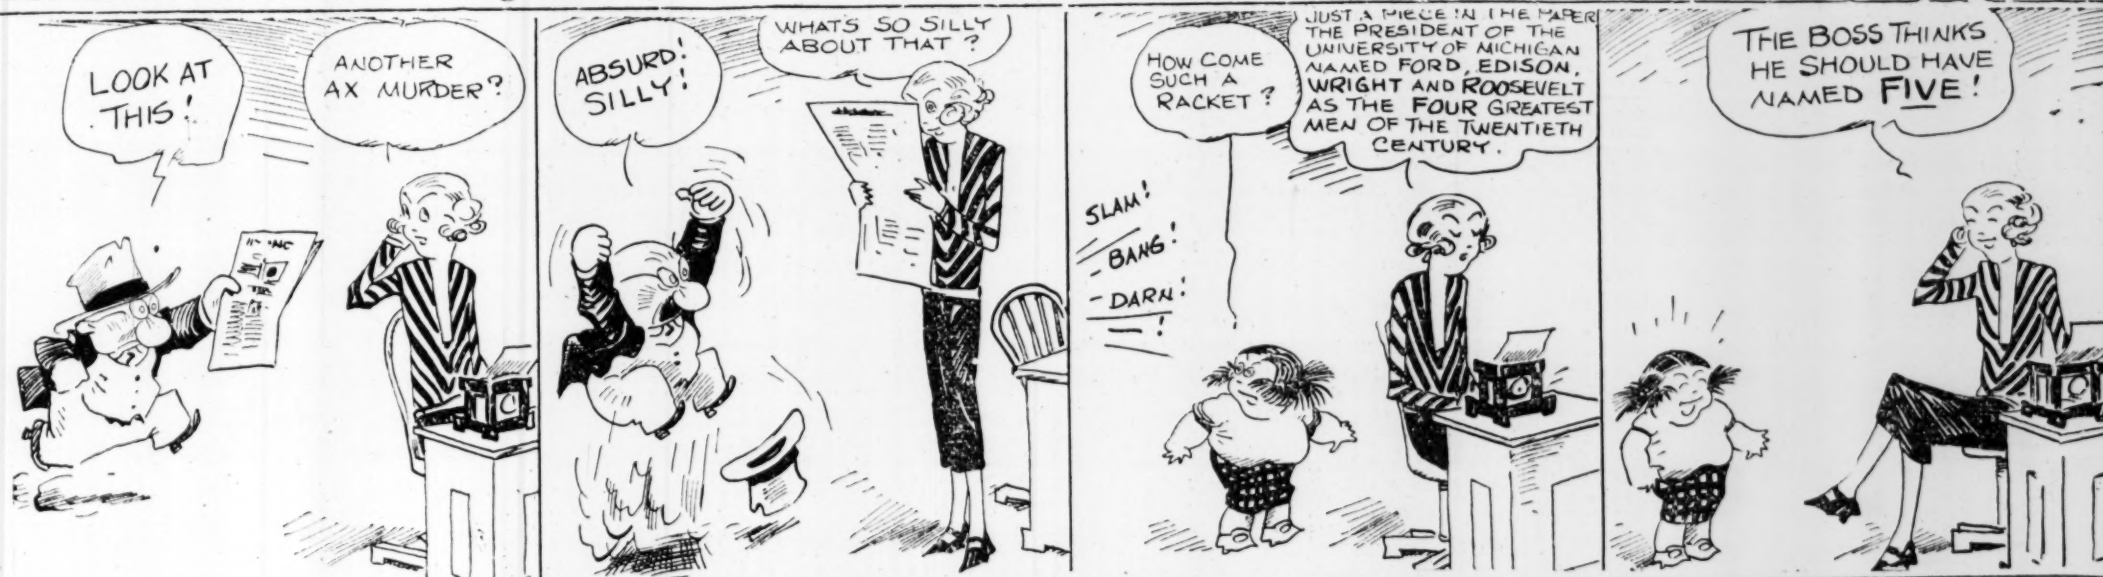

Raw silk continues in quiet demand, as American manufacturers are waiting to see what effect the cent reductions in artificial prices will have on those for the article. Moreover, the spring sea with manufacturers is now entering its seventh month and they hesitate to increase at this time their stock of raw material or of finings goods, more especially as large tributaries are beginning to turn their attention to fall contracts.

In the knit underwear branch not much is doing on fall lines.

With the exception of silk hose which is pretty active, the host demand is restricted. The major of mills that sell direct to the trade have made a price of $14.50 11 and 12 strand full fashioned hosiery which has been selling at $16, wholesalers are understood to have revised their price accordingly.

"Und didn't I say so?"

"Vell, I said you would sew. You could try to sew chust once as a favor. I mean to sew mit a needle."

"Vell, I said so because it must be so, so long as your wife said so. I said it was so because of your wife. If you has said it was so, I wouldn't belief it. But when I said it was so, I didn't mean I would go and sew mit a needle, because I know nothing about sewing mit a needle."

"I don't know why you should feel so."

EDITORIAL
The Cloth Has New Twists
and Turns

The small brim hat continues in great favor. A few of the regulation styles—bell, shawl, and others—have been popular so long are still worn, but many of the smartest of the new models have variations in size and shape, as in the models shown here. Rolled edges, front turns and lifted sides and back brims are but a few of the variations. With the coming of summer, larger brims are always in demand because of the protection from the sun and because they have pretty lines for wear with summer frocks.

Model 2322 presents one of the smartest of the new ribbon hats. Like many other clever designs, its construction is very simple. For the brim ribbon is tucked solidly. The tucks are so close that the fold of one lap is the stitching of the next. This gives a thick soft effect which is most unusual and becoming. A pearl or rhinestone pin clasp the brim to the crown at the right side front. Black moiré ribbon for the brim with beige gros grain ribbon for the crown. Purple and navy satin ribbon, or brown and sand faille ribbon make clever color combinations.

BEAUTY CHATS
A RED NOSE.
There are three causes for a red nose: skin trouble, tight clothes that interfere with the circulation of the blood, or some form of indigestion. The commonest and the hardest difficulty to treat is indigestion; for any stomach trouble had enough to make the blood so thick and impure that it congests in the nose must be very bad indeed, and it will take a long time to go away.

There is an ointment, however, which has been frequently recommended for a red nose. It follows: Powdered sulphur.....1 dram Powdered starch.....2 1/2 oz. Zinc oxide ointment.....1 1/2 oz. Perfumed oil.....5 drops. The powdered sulphur is the familiar flower of sulphur recommended.

Kiki—As you state that you need to reduce the fat and the hips, possibly you are too stout all over, and a general reduction through the diet would be best for you.

An exercise for the hips is to lie flat on floor with knees bent over the head, and then roll to right, and then to left as many times each way as possible without getting dizzy. For the bust, place hands on hips and turn back the elbows as far as you can, while all the time you stretch the muscles of the chest and bust. Bring elbows forward and backward without changing position of hands on hips.

Miss Brown—At 32 years of age, height five feet, four and half inches, your weight should be about 123 pounds.

This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Avoid Soggy Fat.
When frying doughnuts or making French fried potatoes in deep fat, avoid using too many pieces. One that is too fat will be absorbed by the food.

Straight Pictures.
If pictures get out of alignment, hang them in this manner: Put the cord over the hook so that the picture faces the wall, but is quite straight. Then turn it over to the right side. The loop formed will prevent the cord from slipping.

Washing Worn Curtains.
When the lace curtains are at the "boeking" stage, put them in a tub of soapy water and kerosene. Remove the curtains when water is dirty and repeat the process until the curtains are clean. In this way there will be no strain on the curtains to cause further tears.

The Child's Lunch Box.
Never put any food objectionable to the child in the lunch box. See that the lunch box contains just as well-balanced food as the child would receive at home. A small covered box may be tucked in one corner of the box to contain a surprise of some sort—a little pudding, a few pieces of candy—anything pleasing that will make the jar more or less a mystery.

ROAD TO JERICO GROWS IN LENGTH

Chicago, March 23.—America is a modern Samaritan and the modern Jericho road runs not for 17 miles to the Dead Sea, but for a thousand miles across the Near East, Dr. William E. Doughty, of New York, declared tonight before the Sunday Evening club.

"The victims of hate and cruelty are everywhere by the side of the road," he declared.

"America has brought a new spirit and hope to the Near East. Its philanthropies carried on during the war and since in Turkey, the Caucasus, Greece, Syria and Palestine have brought life and hope and courage to millions of people."

"Not only has America kept multitudes from actual starvation and undertaken the training of scores of thousands of homeless and helpless orphans, but the spirit of her workers has kept from despair countless multitudes."

"And the conflicting and sordid rivalries and selfish interests of other nations represented in the Near East, America alone has no commercial or political prizes to grasp. She gave her strength and genius to the relief of distress and the work of building for the future."

FRANCO-CZECH PACT IS BELIEVED FAKE

Berlin, March 23.—Doubt of the authenticity of the text of an alleged secret military pact between France and Czechoslovakia, recently published in Theodore Wolff's Berliner Tageblatt, is now being freely expressed in a section of the Berlin press.

The newspaper believes that France was victimized by international forgers who specialize in the fabrication of diplomatic documents.

Forwards, the socialist organ, pronounced the pact a plain forgery, although it assumes the text was published in good faith. George Bernhardt, in the Vossische Zeitung, also questions the genuineness of the pact and cites textual peculiarities to support his contention. Incidentally Bernhardt expresses the suspicion that German official quarters inspired the exposure, which he asserts is bound to prove inimical to German interests abroad and equally disastrous to Germany's relations with her eastern neighbor.

The writer also assumes that Dr. Edward Benes, the Czechoslovakian foreign minister, in view of his active connection with the league of nations would not dare become a party to a pact which ran counter to league principles or which he would deliberately conceal from the league.

The sudden death yesterday of Valastimil Tuzar, the Czechoslovakian minister in Berlin, is believed to have been hastened by the agitation occasioned by the exposure of the alleged pact. While he is known to have been ailing, "verwaerts" opens and closes that the controversy grouping out of the publication of the alleged pact, in which Tuzar has become involved, was directly responsible for his death. The minister was one of the most popular members of the Berlin diplomatic colony.

On March 19, the Berliner Tageblatt published what it declared to be the text of a secret military agreement between France and Czechoslovakia. The publication caused intense excitement in Berlin, notwithstanding the fact that any such pact had been arranged. This denial came from both Prague and the Czechoslovakian legation in Berlin.

They bought eighty-five acres from the Kellys, paying $17,761, and took a long time lease on another orchard area operated by the same parties. Head of Legion Auxiliary Welcomed by Civic Leaders

A brilliant gathering of leaders of Atlanta's civic life, arranged by Mrs. R. M. Boykin, marked the visit to Atlanta of Mrs. Franklin Lee Bishop, national president of the American Legion auxiliary, who was entertained at luncheon at the Georgian Terrace hotel Sunday by the American Legion auxiliary of Atlanta. Representatives of practically all civic and patriotic organizations were present to welcome her and express the goodwill of their organizations.

Mrs. George W. Corley, president of Argonne Unit No. 1, presided, and officially welcomed Mrs. Bishop, who spoke at length of the service being rendered world war veterans throughout the program. She set forth the auxiliary. Particular emphasis was placed by Mrs. Bishop upon the coordination of effort accomplished by the close harmony in which the American Legion and its auxiliary carry forward their plans. Mrs. Bishop declared that the American Legion is the only organization composed entirely of men which permits women to be members of its committees and as partners in shaping organization policies. Asa Warren Candler, national executive committee member of the American Legion, presiding Mrs. Bishop on the program. She set forth the great field for service open to patriotic men and women. Mr. Candler declared the legion and the auxiliary were well composed of "service, not service, men and women."

Mrs. W. C. Elrod introduced the first speaker, and beautiful music was played throughout the luncheon by Mrs. Austin and Miss M. E. Phillips.

Mrs. T. T. Stevens, representing the federated women of Atlanta, extended on behalf of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, a welcome to Mrs. Bishop and an expression of approval and sympathy in all the undertakings of the auxiliary on behalf of ex-service men. In graceful and well-chosen words Mrs. Stevens assured both the auxiliary and the legion of the hearty goodwill of organized women.

Included among those present were Mrs. George Corley, president of the auxiliary; Mrs. W. C. Elrod and Mrs. Rufus Barnett, past presidents; Mrs. B. M. Boykin, state officer of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. M. C. Roberts, state officer of the Daughters of the Confederacy; Mrs. B. G. Hastings, president of the fifth district Federation of Women's Clubs; Miss Susie Wallis, chairman of the woman's division, chamber of commerce; Mrs. W. S. Coleman, regent of the Joseph Tabernash chapter, D. A. R.; Mrs. Murray Howard, president of the West End Woman's club; Mrs. B. S. McMurtry, Mrs. J. B. Saunders, Mrs. W. George M. Normandy, Mrs. Nell W. Mazzoni, Mrs. Philip Bangs, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. N. Bloodworth, Mr. and Mrs. Basil Goodingway, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stahl, Dr. and Mrs. Mel G. Ward, and Misses Eva Corley, Jessie Ragan, Anna Corley, Mary Corley, Mrs. Cayce, Mamie Smith, Edna McMurtry and Rebekah Meyerhardt.

REED QUITS FIGHT FOR MISSOURI O. K.

Washington, March 23.—Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, in a statement tonight declared he would not ask the Missouri democratic convention to support his candidacy for the presidency, but to confer upon him any favors whatever.

"I expect to abide by the decision of the people of Missouri rendered at the August primaries," he said, "and to heartily support our ticket."

Senator Reed said that when he asked the Missouri democrats to endorse him as a presidential candidate he "had hoped no considerable amount of bitterness would be aroused," but these expectations "were not realized."

Declining to discuss the factors "contributing to the unsatisfactory results," Senator Reed said he was "not going to discuss the factors which have contributed to the unsatisfactory results."

He urged platform planks reaffirming the declaration of the doctrine of civil and religious liberty and denouncing "all efforts which by groups or individuals to prescribe any part of the people on account of race or religion."

VANDERLIP DEFENDS MOTIVE FOR ACTIONS

Washington, March 23.—The action of J. Horace Harding, of New York, in refusing to sit with Frank A. Vanderlip on the board of directors of the Continental Can company, brought a statement in his own defense tonight from Mr. Vanderlip, who is here directing his citizens' federal research bureau.

"My reputation must suffer in order to draw the attention of the people to the need of a cleanup in various departments of the government, Mr. Vanderlip said, he was willing that 'my own reputation should suffer, as it has, because of what has been called my 'indiscretion.'"

"No man likes to offend deliberately against good taste," Mr. Vanderlip said. "No man who has enjoyed the esteem of his fellow citizens as I have in the past likes to place himself deliberately under a cloud. I feel, however, that what may happen to me personally in the present situation is of small moment. My one concern is that corruption in the government shall be rooted out."

Mr. Harding objected to Mr. Vanderlip's statement in which he declared a statement in his own defense tonight from Mr. Vanderlip, who is here directing his citizens' federal research bureau.

Mr. Vanderlip renewed charges against "unfortunate appointments" of President Harding and explained that many of his speaking engagements were canceled because he wished to come here to assist Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, in the Daugherty investigation.

his greatest masterpiece, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." The setting cost $500,000 and the completed production $1,500,000. "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," today enters on the second and positive final week of its most successful engagement at the Atlanta theatre. Two performances will be given daily, at 2:30 and 8:30 o'clock, with the final showing Saturday night.

Keith's Forsyth.
Everybody enjoys a good laugh on the country "rube" whether they admit it or not. And that's the answer to the phenomenal success as an entertainer of Charles Althoff, "The Yankee Fiddler," who in his funny rural characterizations comes to Keith's Forsyth theatre the first three days of this week as the headlining feature.

Mr. Althoff doesn't do much fiddling. For it is fun that he aims to produce, and in this line he is a very able entertainer.

Greek Orthodox Church Abandons Julian Calendar

Change Is Forerunner of Meeting of Congress of Scientists to Revise Entire System.

BY PIERRE VAN PAISSEN.
The Greek Orthodox church of Atlanta Sunday abandoned the Julian calendar and skipped 13 days to reach March 23, the date officially marked on our own or Gregorian calendar. Rev. Papageorge, rector of the Hellenic church, in making the announcement said that the move was based on a decree of the Patriarch of Constantinople, the spiritual head of the church.

This move, which was preceded only a few months ago by the Russian Orthodox church adopting the same measure, means that practically all the Christian religions have adopted the calendar inaugurated by Pope Gregory the Great in October, 1582. The Julian calendar, originated by Julius Caesar, remains still in force, however, in certain sections of Bulgaria, Armenia and Rumania, and it is not likely that these countries will reform their chronological arrangement now until the great congress of scientists, which has been called in Rome for May, 1925, will have considered and examined the whole system of our modern computation of time.

Abolish Leap Years.
When that congress is called, it will practically go out and use the Julian calendar for a year, and on February 22 will get their full and legitimate share of birthdays, for under the tentative drafts of a new calendar, which the scientists hope to present to the world next year will be a thing of the past. The International Congress of Science meets next year in Rome. The greatest living scientists of the world will be present there. Einstein will debate his theory of relativity, and Professor Kameelink Olney, of the University of Leyden, Holland, the man who succeeded in lighting helium, will also take part in the discussions. Electrical wizards, physicists and astronomers will congregate in the Eternal City during that time. Simultaneously with this conference a meeting of the greatest importance and historical significance is going to take place.

The meteorological department of the Vatican has seized upon the opportunity to call attention to the need of reform of the calendar on account of its many irregularities and to the fact that the church calendar with its movable feasts at a time when the world's leading scientists are in Rome next year.

For that reason invitations have been sent to the authorities of other branches of Christendom, such as the Anglican and Presbyterian bodies and the Eastern churches, to be present.

Historical Significance.
But apart from the far-reaching changes proposed in our calendar, the scientists, in the course of thousands of years the errors of the calendar became more noticeable as the seasons grew into days and weeks. No longer did the signs of the seasons coincide with the days on the calendar and if allowed to go on the day would come ultimately when we could celebrate Christmas amid the verdure of spring and have the first of May fall on a day when a blizzard might rage.

Easter will always come on May 1 after the calendar is reformed. New Year's day will always come on Sunday and there will be less confusion and the savants will be satisfied.

Three Are Hurt in Auto Accident
Narrowly escaping serious injury when the large touring car in which they were riding crashed head-on into an out-bound street car on Peachtree road, near Brookwood station, J. P. Leonard, 29, of Leburne avenue, A. W. Powell, attorney at law, and P. Carroll were treated for cuts and bruises at Grady hospital about 12:45 o'clock this morning.

The machine was completely demolished and authorities at Grady hospital were informed. Leonard was operating the machine, stated that a dense fog prevented him from seeing the approaching street car until it was too late to steer his car out of its path.

Cuts about the face and body were suffered by all three of the occupants of the car, but no serious injuries were received. They were dismissed from the hospital.

Leonard was charged with reckless driving. He was released on a copy of charges.

FRANCE TO PUSH CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

FOR SAFETY PAOT

Paris, March 23.—With the visit here tomorrow of Count de St-Aulaire, French ambassador to London, France will assume the initiative in diplomatic negotiations with the British government concerning the British security of France. The ambassador is returning to take part in joint examinations of principles under which the security of France and the general peace of Europe can be assured.

Count de St-Aulaire and Premier Poincaré will discuss questions of a pact of guarantees, the problem of the Rhine frontier and the role which the league of nations will be called upon to play in the new system of a European balance of power. Tomorrow's conference may be regarded as the normal development of the policy inaugurated by the French government in its recent publication of its Yellow Book.

Security of France Issue.
The French government considers, although no official announcement has been made to this effect, that while the expert committees were engaged in finding a solution for the reparations problem it was an opportune moment to begin negotiations on the question of France's security, which always has been regarded here as one of the fundamental bases to a general agreement.

An exchange of views regarding security has been in progress between Paris and London for some weeks through diplomatic channels. The matter received fresh impetus after a recent letter of Premier Poincaré to Premier MacDonald, in which the French government's suggestions were outlined, since then security, rather than reparations, has formed the bulk of the communications between the two governments.

Conversations Arranged.
Early last week expression of a desire was sent from Paris that security, discussed before the expert committees reports were submitted, should be discussed before the French government's suggestions were outlined, since then security, rather than reparations, has formed the bulk of the communications between the two governments.

Official circles in Paris desire that too exaggerated importance shall not be given to negotiations at this stage, but it is believed the long details of the French government's suggestions will be taken place simply to allow Count de St-Aulaire to obtain an outline of the situation at the French foreign office and to give the premier the view point of the British foreign office.
